TRUFA NIGHTS

7 - 18 FEBRUARY 2023 COLIMA 264, ROMA NORTE

Studio davidpompa presents “Trufa nights - echoes on melting glass” installation during the 2023 Mexico Art week in its Colonia Roma exhibition space. Presenting the new aesthetics of the iconic Trufa collection in a twelve day night exhibition.

TRUFA NIGHTS will take place at dusk during twelve evenings when the last sun rays are still faintly perceptible and the sky is surrounded by blueish and grey clouds.

The installation will present the decontextualization of the hand-blown recycled glass process overlapped against a contemporary melting surface.

Passing the installation entrance, the first constellation embraces the space as a rhythmical composition of hanging light sculptures against a warm light panel backdrop. Elegant metal surfaces reflect in a subtle way both light sources, filling space with its several layers of compositions. This level of metal is used in the process of blowing glass and are in the installation part of social areas.

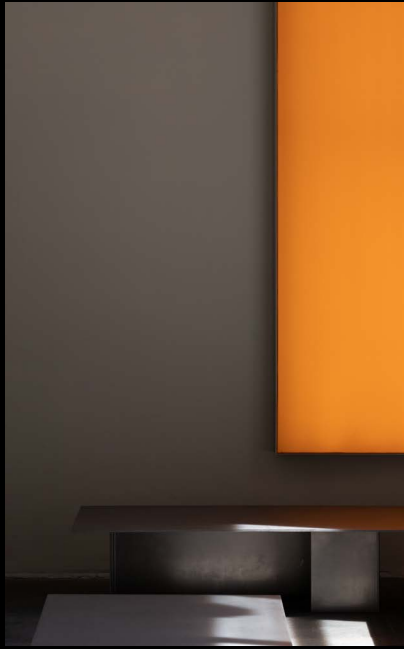

Entering the second room opens the question that set ground to this installation; life cycles and recycling. Dozens of transparent waste bags filled with glass create an installation of structures and room divisions.

The Trufa series is part of the initial collection of the studio and has established itself as an iconic object. After 8 years, the story continues with an aesthetic redefinition and will be presented as a new redesigned collection.

Transparencies, metals, glass, and light will set the framework for the relaunch. Contrasting the studio's latest light sculptures with a dialogue on cycles and process.

Following the material scent collection, the collaboration with Philipp Kolmann will transform the recycled hand-blown glass into an olfactory experience. This scent and natural oil will be essential part of the experience and is manufactured in the Netherlands as a limited edition.
