

The merging of finishes is a lighter version of the classical Meta that encloses the warm shining cone in a monotone range, unifying form and color in one object of light. The fiorito stone is quarried in Puebla, Mexico.

In this new composition, the dark tones are exchanged for a lighter palette. The fiorito light gray tone encloses small fossil remains, giving it a white tone relief. Two sculptural geometrical forms framing the elegant contours. Both cylindrical, minimal shapes adapt easily to a light background or work as a contrast in a darker atmosphere.
